The Creative Individual - Review AND Giveaway

I used to watch all the decorating shows on HGTV and I thought that it would help me learn how to decorate my home and children's rooms. Apparently it takes more than watching these shows for me to learn how to decorate - I will spare you pictures of my "failures." That is why when I came across The Creative Individual's website with their fabulous wall art - I was sold. These make me look like I actually know what I am doing!

These really aren't your run of the mill vinyl wall art - these are truly works of art. I have never seen anything like these before. Their Murals, Popouts (peel & stick) and Growth charts are some of the most unique and creative that I have seen. I have been shopping for wall art for my kids room for some time and FINALLY now have these great Popouts in their rooms.

I started Jakey's room long ago but it just never seemed pulled together, until now. Jakey is my little monster, errr monkey, so he got the 2 Monkey Popups. Every day we say goodnight to the monkey who looks over him while he sleeps.

Then there is the wall that I could not figure out what to put on - I am so thrilled to have this other little friend to hang out there.

I also got the Popout POKadots which matched Luke's bedding perfectly and is the starting point I needed to start decorating his room as well. I am still moving these dots around - they are so easy to peel off and re-stick, which is wonderful since as we continue to decorate, I will surely have to move them again.

While you are at their site, you really must look through their Custom Portfolio. Here you will see their custom murals and artwork - Breathtaking is all I can say. Steve of The Creative Individual has been painting murals for 12 years and developed the paste up murals and popouts in the last 2 years. His goal was to take the handpainted look that people have always loved and adapt them into a great product that is accessible to more people.

WIN IT!! One of my readers will receive their own 2 Monkey Popups!!
